

Mother's Day Activities

Here's some great activities to do with your mum, aunt, grandma or special person to celebrate Mother's Day.

Cooking:

Cooking for someone or with someone can be great fun. Get into the kitchen and cook up a treat for your special person.

Toast, eggs, fruit, coffee, tea, a smoothie, or even reheating last night's leftovers. It doesn't matter what you cook, your special person will love that fact that they didn't have to make it themselves. And don't forget to wash the dishes—cooking also means cleaning up after yourself!

Write a letter/Make your own card

Communication is fast and furious with so many ways to keep in touch electronically. You may like to write a letter to your special person, so they can keep your letter forever. A letter may include a picture, or a keepsake like a pressed flower. Or you may like to create your own card, drawing your own image, or using craft items to stick on the card to make an image.

If you are unsure how to write a letter, research "letter writing" online.

Together Time:

Spending time with your special person can be the greatest gift on Mother's Day. You can do this in person, you can Skype, Zoom, Facetime, text or email.

Choose an activity that you would both like to do. It could be sport in the backyard, cooking in the kitchen, making art together, watching a movie together, gardening, singing, dancing, playing a board game or finding a book and reading together. Decide on a specific time of the day and just hang out!
