To find out more about Rangoli, their designs and meaning, research “Rangoli” and “Paper Plate Rangoli” online.

So what is a Rangoli?

Rangoli is a traditional Indian sand-painted design often seen during Diwali, the Indian festival of lights.

Traditionally created on floors both inside and outside of homes, Rangoli can be made in a variety of sizes and designs, and from a variety of different materials. Creating a Rangoli can be a fun activity to do with your family and friends, or a great way to make decorations to celebrate Diwali.

What does a Rangoli look like?

Rangoli designs can be simple geometric shapes, or flower and petal shapes. Lotus Flowers are a popular Rangoli symbol. Look at the images on these pages for some inspiration.

So what will I need?

Start with a blank paper plate.

Draw your design using texta, markers or pencils.

You could also create a design using coloured paper shapes—circles, squares and triangles. Once you have a design in mind, use glue to stick the coloured paper to the paper plate.
