

Rangoli Chalk Drawing

Do you like drawing with chalk? You might like to try drawing a chalk Rangoli design on garden concrete, your driveway or on some black paper.

To find out more about Rangoli, their designs and meaning, research “Rangoli” and “How to make Rangoli with chalk” online.

Make sure to ask a grown-up before drawing on any inside/outside surfaces.

So what is a Rangoli?

Rangoli is a traditional Indian sand-painted design often seen during Diwali, the Indian festival of lights.

Traditionally created on floors both inside and outside of homes, Rangoli can be made in a variety of sizes and designs, and from a variety of different materials. Creating a Rangoli can be a fun activity to do with your family and friends, or a great way to make decorations to celebrate Diwali. You can use white and coloured chalk to draw your design.

What does a Rangoli look like?

Rangoli designs can be simple geometric shapes, or flower and petal shapes. Lotus Flowers are a popular Rangoli symbol. Look at the images on these pages for some inspiration.
